The Parent-Child Home Program

SINCE 1965

The Parent-Child Home Program

Annual Report

Fiscal Year July 1, 2008 - June 30, 2009

Program Mission Statement

The Parent-Child Home Program, a research-proven home visiting model, prepares young children for school success by increasing their language and literacy skills, enhancing their social-emotional development, and strengthening the parent-child relationship.

National Center Mission Statement

The Parent-Child Home Program's National Center provides training, technical assistance, oversight and quality control for Program replication sites. The Center is dedicated to advocacy and outreach in order to increase the number of communities the Program serves and the number of children and families served in our current communities.

In 2007, Casey & Thomas were raising two children and working full time when they heard about The Parent-Child Home Program in Florence, SC. Taking turns staying at home with the boys, they wanted to make sure their 'boys were on the right track' and enrolled two & a half year old Jadin in the Program.

Their Home Visitor starting coming twice a week, bringing books, blocks, puzzles, and other toys used to engage Jadin and his parents in reading, learning and play.

Soon Casey & Thomas began to see how the Program could help them achieve their own dreams, as well as those for their children. They both enrolled in family literacy classes offered at the Florence School District One Parent Center. Working full time, taking care of two small children, and actively pursuing their GED's, they continued at this hectic pace, determined to reach their goals.

After two years of The Parent-Child Home Program, Jadin graduated and scored in the 99th percentile on the Peabody Picture Vocabulary Test, a measurement of a child's verbal ability and scholastic aptitude. Casey received her GED in the spring of 2008 and Thomas continued to attend classes until earning his GED in the spring of 2009.

This story is a wonderful example of the powerful impact The Parent Child Home Program can have on an entire family. It literally changed all of their lives. Casey is currently attending the local technical college and Thomas plans to continue his education once Casey is finished.

Jadin is enrolled in the School District's four-year-old program and is doing exceedingly well, while his younger brother is learning and growing with the books and toys brought by the Program. This family's motivation and determination are relentless, and, in 2008, they were honored with Florence School District One's Family Literacy award.

Two determined parents, two enthusiastic children, a proven program, books & toys, & a supportive family literacy program; mix them all together & you have a recipe for success, all thanks to the Florence School District One & The Parent-Child Home Program!

Thomas and Jadin (left) read one book, while Casey and her younger son read another

"The Parent-Child Home Program is the most cost-effective, proven initiative available today preparing at-risk children and their families for success in school. The success of the Program is best documented in Pittsfield, MA, where they've had it for over 28 years, and a 1998 study demonstrated that 84% of the Parent-Child Home Program children, all of them at-risk children, graduated high school."

A Letter From Our Executive Director and Board President

Dear Friends,

The past year has presented us not only with unique challenges, but also with great opportunities to grow and to expand The Parent-Child Home Program's reach to serve more families in need. The economic situation, while increasing the number of families in need of Program services, has led to reductions in public funding for home visiting at the state and local level, and in private funding as well. On the other hand, President Obama and Congress have focused much attention on the importance of bridging the achievement gap and on the value of early childhood services and, specifically, home visiting in helping the country accomplish this goal. During this year, members of Congress introduced the Education Begins at Home Act and other legislation supporting federal funding for home visiting and the administration proposed expanded funding for home visiting (all of this activity concluded with the inclusion of the first federal funding designated specifically for home visiting in the health care legislation that was signed into law on March 23, 2010).

Despite the challenging economic situation, we have been able to open ten new Parent-Child Home Program replication sites in five different states. We served our first class of over 50 students in Manhattan through the Harlem site sponsored by Graham-Windham, and are now in four of the five New York City Boroughs. We presented on the Program at conferences and events in 8 states. We continued to reach out to new states and communities, and to work with current sites to expand to reach the growing need.

In order to ensure that we could continue to enhance quality assurance and program support services for our local sites and continue our expansion efforts, the Board adopted its first deficit budget in the organization's history and decided to cover the deficit from reserve funds. Your continued support, generous donations, and involvement with the Program made it possible for this to be successful year, and enabled us to keep the Program going strong despite this small setback. In particular, we thank those who worked on and supported our participation in Youth I.N.C.'s Celebration, which proved to be a record setting event for us this year, bringing in over $115,000! Without all of your support we would not have the success stories and achievements outlined in these pages.

Thank you,

Thea Kelly

Our Annual National Conference - May 2009, Uniondale, NY

The 2009 Annual Conference was a great success, bringing together over 160 Home Visitors & Coordinators from around the world. Meredith Wiley, author and State Director of Fight Crime: Invest in Kids New York, opened the conference with a speech on the links between early abuse and neglect, and violent behavior in children. Keynote speaker Heather Forest discussed the magic of storytelling for young listeners, and told a children's tale accompanied by her songs. Workshops included 'To Wait or Evaluate: A Guide to Normal Speech and Language Development', 'Bringing the Gift of Home Visiting to Diverse Families', and 'The Emotional Well-Being of Relative Caregiving Families'. The conference also included a marketplace, where exhibitors displayed the latest in children's picture books and educational toys.

Parent-Child Home Program on Board with Presidential Priorities!

"That's why I'm issuing a challenge to our states: Develop a cutting-edge plan to raise the quality of your early learning programs; show us how you'll work to ensure that children are better prepared for success by the time they enter kindergarten."

President Obama, March 10, 2009

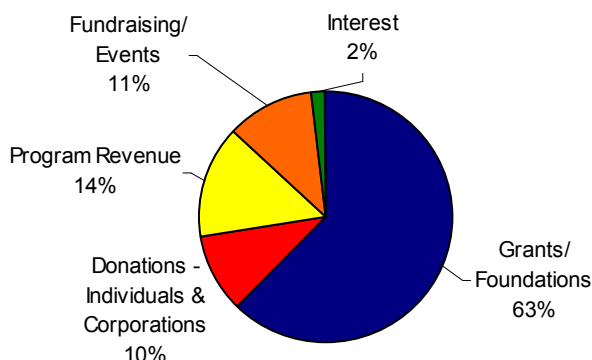

President Obama has issued a challenge, calling for a national effort to prepare our children for school success. The Parent-Child Home Program and The King Center Charter School in Buffalo, New York, are already meeting this challenge, and have the data to prove how effective an early learning program can be! An ongoing study has been tracking children in the Program to see how effectively it prepares them for school success. The data demonstrates that Parent-Child Home Program graduates begin kindergarten with better literacy skills than similarly-situated non-Program children have when they finish kindergarten. The non-Program children do not catch up, even after being in the same kindergarten class for a year. These results prove The Parent-Child Home Program to be an effective early learning program, demonstrating the kind of kindergarten readiness results the Administration is looking for and is ensuring that low-income children truly have a chance to soar to success!

Dr. John Silber Recognized for his Commitment to the Program

Dr. John Silber, former Chairman of the Massachusetts State Board of Education, and President Emeritus of Boston University, was presented with the Massachusetts Parent-Child Home Program Soaring to Success Award on December 11, 2008 at the State House in Boston. This honor was bestowed upon Dr. Silber for his commitment to, and advocacy for, The Parent-Child Home Program.

In 1998, Dr. Silber presented The Parent-Child Home Program and the high school graduation longitudinal study from the Pittsfield, MA replication site to a group that included the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate, members of the Governor's staff, and the media. He highlighted his commitment to effective early childhood education and urged the state government to provide funding to expand The Parent-Child Home Program Model statewide. As a result of Dr. Silber's advocacy, the Program has a line item in the Massachusetts state budget and 31 sites reaching 1,500 families in over 80 communities across the state.

A Year of Charity and Giving

The Parent-Child Home Program Partners with the Combined Federal Campaign

In 2008 we underwent an extensive application and review process to become a non-profit partner in the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC). This annual campaign is open to all federal civilian employees and is the world's largest and most successful annual workplace charity campaign.

Thank you to all who chose to donate to The Parent-Child Home Program. Please remember this fundraising drive in the future.

2008 Youth I.N.C. Celebration for New York Kids!

In November, Board members, supporters, staff, and Program families gathered at the Sheraton, New York City, to enjoy The Best of Broadway a song and dance revue featuring some of Broadway's most memorable and dynamic numbers, including selections from the hit production, Movin' Out.

The 2008 Youth I.N.C. event was huge success, raising more than $115,000 for The Parent-Child Home Program, an organization fundraising record!

The Program Joins Facebook Causes!

The Parent-Child Home Program now has a Facebook Causes page. In our first year, we already have over 450 members! Please visit <http://apps.facebook.com/causes/41326> to join (you will need a facebook account to do so). From here you can keep up to date on Program news, tell your friends about the Program and even donate directly to the National Center.

Thank You to participants in the 2009 Putt-ing Families First Golf Outing

Golfers gathered on Monday, May 18, 2009 at The Creek, Locust Valley, NY to play a round of golf to benefit The Parent-Child Home Program and two other Long Island non-profits.
